“ , he has never had a patient die in tmertaent before so I doubt that this happens to often. Also I think it just depends on the patient/psychologist relationship.2) Yes I do agree with Laura that Paul should cancel his afternoon appointments. I think that this will have an effect on the way he treats his other patients and alter the way he thinks during sessions.3)I think that Paul does see the similarities in himself and his father which I think scares him.

“ Very sorry to hear of Bob's passing. He was very helpful to me through many years and always a gentleman. I was honored to have the privilege to sit with him for many hours and listen to his wonderful stories.

“ So sorry to hear of Bob's passing away. My husband and I knew Bob for many years. He was a very interesting and funny man. We enjoyed many visits with him. My husband first got to know Bob while helping him with yard work as a young teenager. He always talked so highly about Bob I just had to meet him. I was so glad I got the chance to get to know him. Our children would love to visit him because he would light off his little cannon for them and they enjoyed talking with him. He used to come to our family parties when he was able to. We all enjoyed him very much. Few people can touch your life and leave special footprints, Bob was one of them. May he rest in peace and may God comfort those he left behind. Lloyd and Debbie Darley
