“ Dear Patricia,

It is with a combination of sadness and nostalgia that I send this note of condolence. I last talked to Sal in September, 1979, at my father's wake. My father, Frank Fappiano, and Sal had worked together at Sealtest for many years and were also members of the same KFC Council. Whenever I visited the Dairy as a youngster in the late 40s and early 50s, I always found it to be a fun experience. And when I think of the people there who made it an enjoyable experience for me, I always place your father at the top of the list! By the way, I wonder if he ever mentioned his recipe for longevity?

*My Sincere Condolences,
Eugene Fappiano*

“ As my brother commented when I told him Uncle Sally passed, he said oh no Anthony Quinn! He did resemble him! Very handsome man...and talented, very creative, floral arrangements, paintings, I have one of his charcoal drawings, which I treasure. But one of my most treasured memories was visiting the Marino residence as a child and being able to have any kind and as much I could eat, ice cream!..Many special memories of Uncle Sally... The party in heaven must really be in full gear now!
